NAVY INDIFFERENT TO JAPANESE DECLARES

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Because of the vast departure of the "policy difference" no effort was made to bring the navy to a state of preparedness for the coming of the Japanese. The former commander of the Pacific reserve fleet, declared today before the senate naval investigating committee.

The admiral said that in 1915 when he went to the Pacific coast to take command of the fleet, he found that there were so small complements that they could not be moved from the dock. The navy had been reduced to a skeleton crew, but the department failed to advocate sufficient personnel increases and was unable to influence the congress to pass a state of war being forced upon it.

The only persons in the navy department who were later to his plans were more men and material preparedness were the assistant secretary and members of the general board, the officer declared.

The explanation and the pair disappeared. The men then discovered that he had been robbed.

The two men had a narrow escape from arrest in Little Rock last night of March 15, when two patrolmen found them working on a Ford car. The men disclosed when spoken to, and the Ford revealed suitcases filled with wearing apparel and jewelry. The cars were taken to headquarters, where one was identified by a Helena man as his.

The matter was kept quiet. Although the police at Little Rock said that they were leaving the officers with the car, they caught a Rock Island train for Memphis, where the two men another and looted several hotel rooms. They then went to Mississippi.

The said, according to the police, that they robbed several rooms in a Mississippi hotel before returning to Little Rock. The police are confident they returned from local hotels when they returned here from Missis-
